Nursing Home and Assisted Living Facility: Adverse Incidents

July 2008

Summary

This is the seventh report to the Legislature on nursing home and assisted living facility adverse incidents. Data presented in this report are based on the date the adverse incident and liability claim reports were received by the Agency during a fiscal year.

Data presented in the report include:

July 1, 2007 to June 30, 2008

- 3,928 reported adverse incidents occurring with associated outcomes.
- 17 on-site visits to nursing homes and 12 on-site visits to assisted living facilities specifically in response to adverse incidents requiring investigations. These surveys did not result in findings of Class I & II deficiencies.
- 70 practitioner cases opened by the Department of Health in response to adverse incident reports resulting in 33 license revocations or suspensions.

Comments

- Adverse incident and liability claim information currently available is self-reported and is not subject to verification or audit.
- All data reported are based upon the information received by the Agency from nursing homes and assisted living facilities unless otherwise indicated.
- Counties are not included in tables if no information has been reported.

Facility Reports

Report Descriptions and Requirements

Adverse Incidents

Adverse incidents are those events over which facility staff or personnel could exercise control, rather than occurring as a result of the resident's condition, that resulted in:

- Death;
- Brain or spinal damage;
- Permanent disfigurement;
- Fracture or dislocation of bones or joints;
- A limitation of neurological, physical, or sensory function;
- Requiring medical attention to which the resident has not given his or her informed consent including failure to honor advanced directives; and/or
- A transfer of the resident, within or outside the facility, to a unit providing a more acute level of care.

Or any event (regardless of facility control) that resulted in:

- Abuse, neglect, or exploitation;
- Resident elopement; and/or
- A report to law enforcement.

When an incident occurs, nursing homes are required to notify the facility risk manager within three (3) business days of the occurrence and notify the Agency within one (1) business day after the risk manager receives the report. Assisted living facilities must notify the Agency within one (1) business day of the occurrence of the incident. The Agency is authorized to investigate any such incident and may prescribe measures that must or may be taken in response to the incident.

Nursing homes must submit a complete adverse incident report to the Agency for each adverse incident within 15 calendar days of the occurrence. Assisted living facilities must submit a complete adverse incident report to the Agency for each adverse incident within 15 days of the occurrence. The reporting facility also indicates if the incident was determined to be an adverse incident.

By law, the adverse incident report is confidential and is not discoverable or admissible in any civil or administrative action, except in disciplinary proceedings by the Agency or the appropriate regulatory board.

Notices of Intent

Generally, a Notice of Intent (NOI) serves to notify the facility of a plaintiff's intent to sue for some cause of action. Nursing homes and assisted living facilities are required to provide the name of the resident, the date of the incident, if applicable, and the type of injury or violation. Facilities have been instructed to submit this information to the Agency by the 10th of the month following the month a NOI is received.

Agency Review

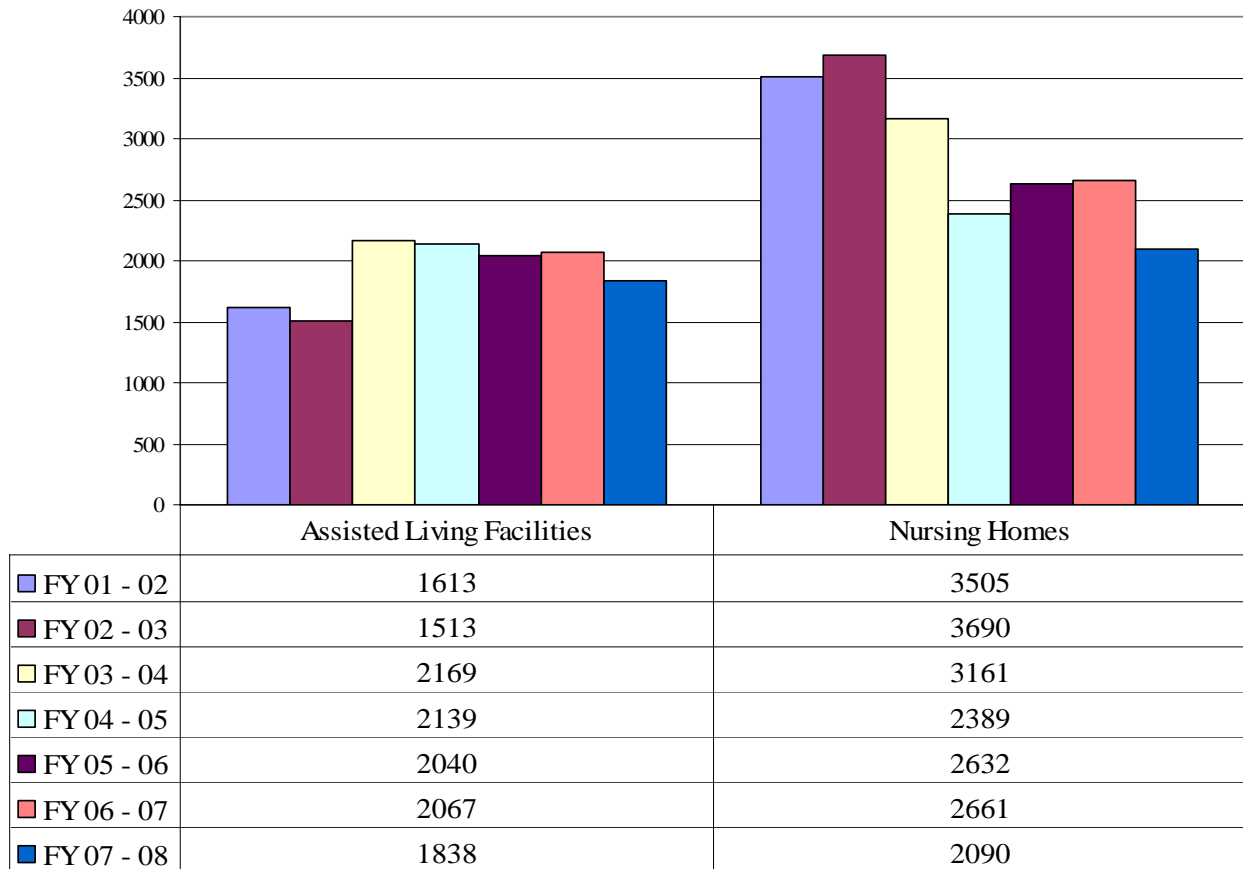

All adverse incident reports are reviewed to determine if further Agency action is necessary. An investigation may be requested based on quality of care concerns involving specific residents or a situation may exist that could cause harm to one or more residents. Information submitted in an adverse incident report may also trigger a request for investigation of another licensed facility if there is concern regarding care received at another licensed provider. All adverse incident reports are made available to the Department of Health.

Adverse Incident Data Summary

Table 1 shows a comparison of the number of adverse incidents received statewide for both nursing homes and assisted living facilities over the past seven fiscal years. Table 2 details the number of adverse incidents by facility type and by county of facility location for the period July 1, 2007 through June 30, 2008.

Outcomes

The top five types of adverse incident outcomes reported by nursing homes during the period July 1, 2007 through June 30, 2008, are: “transfer to a higher acuity level facility,” “abuse, neglect or exploitation,” “fracture/dislocation,” “report to law enforcement,” and “elopement.” For assisted living facilities, the top five adverse incident outcomes reported for the same period of time are: “transfer to a higher acuity level facility,” “fracture/dislocation,” “report to law enforcement,” “elopement,” and “abuse, neglect or exploitation.” An adverse incident may have more than one outcome; thus, the numbers of outcomes will exceed the numbers of adverse incidents.

Tables 3 and 4 show a comparison of the top five outcomes over the last seven fiscal years.

Tables 5 and 6 detail the number of incident outcomes by facility type by county for the period July 1, 2007 though June 30, 2008.

Adverse Incident Inspections

If review of an adverse incident raises concerns about resident safety, an adverse incident inspection is initiated. If deficiencies are found, a classification is made based on the severity of the deficiency. Class I deficiencies are those that cause or have the potential to cause serious injury, harm, impairment or death to a resident. Class II deficiencies result in negative outcomes that compromise residents' abilities to maintain or attain their highest practicable functional levels. Class III deficiencies result in no more than minimal physical, mental or psychological discomfort to a resident or have the potential to compromise the resident's ability to maintain or reach his/her highest practicable functional level. Class IV deficiencies have no more than a minor negative impact on the resident. There were no Class I or Class II deficiencies cited as a result of an adverse incident investigation for the period July 1, 2007 through June 30, 2008.

Table 7 details the number of nursing home and assisted living facility inspections completed as a result of an adverse incident listed by facility type, county and the number of times deficiencies were cited.

Medical Quality Assurance

Between July 1, 2007 and June 30, 2008, the Consumer Services Unit of the Department of Health reviewed nursing home and assisted living facility adverse incidents and combined duplicative information to create 11,535 case number entries. Of these entries, 440 involving practitioners were investigated. Table 8 shows nursing home and assisted living facility practitioner actions over time. Table 8a details actions taken against involved practitioners.

As a result of information discovered during these investigations, there were 70 findings of probable cause and 33 license revocations or suspensions. Of the 33 revocations or suspensions, 27 involved certified nursing assistants and 6 involved licensed nurses.

Notices of Intent – Nursing Homes and Assisted Living Facilities

Between July 1, 2007 and June 30, 2008, the Agency received 357 nursing home NOI reports and 22 assisted living facility NOI reports from the facilities and plaintiff's attorneys. Tables 9 and 10 detail the number of NOIs received by calendar quarter.

Type of Injury

Facilities are asked to identify the type of resident injury that is specified in each Notice of Intent received and reported to the Agency. In some cases, providers do not identify a type of injury and in some cases they indicate multiple injury types. For nursing homes, the top five types of injuries identified that are associated with NOI for fiscal year 07-08 are: “other”, “falls”, “pressure ulcers”, “abuse” and “fracture”. For assisted living facilities, the top types of injuries identified on the NOI are: “other”, “fracture”, “abuse/neglect”, “law enforcement” and “death”.

Tables 13 and 14 provide the number of reported nursing home and assisted living facility Notices of Intent by county by type of injury alleged. Counties are not included in tables if no information has been reported.
